Re: Cheshire Police Criminality

My understanding is that the police are supposed to uphold the law, not to break it and not to harbour criminals in their ranks. Yet that is what you do.

You are probably aware of my claim against the Cheshire constabulary for malicious prosecution. The basis of the claim was the false statements by PCs Eoin Anderson and Nicola Rimmer for my prosecution for a driving offence I did not commit. I submitted a formal complaint that was rejected without ever being investigated by the constabulary, hence my claim for malicious prosecution. My claim was thwarted by the perjury of Anderson and Rimmer, which I can prove but was not able to at the trial because they changed their testimony, from their previous supposedly "true" statements, to something even more untrue, and because of my inexperience, not to mention obstruction by the judge.

I made a request to the constabulary that the perjury and/or perverting the course of justice be investigated. It was not.

For the avoidance of doubt, PCs Anderson and Rimmer are criminals that you are protecting. Furthermore, you are profiting from their criminality, whereas I am suffering from it. Are you therefore upholding the law as you are obligated to do? I think not. In fact I think it a pretty sorry state of affairs when the Police and Crime Commissioner and the acting chief constable obstruct justice and endorse a miscarriage of justice.

You may be aware of my website, <https://cheshirepolice.org> in which I state very clearly that Anderson and Rimmer are crooked and deliberately gave false testimony in court. The website has been live for over 3 months. I think it pretty obvious that my publication of the facts would be defamatory if they were not true. I have even asked those mentioned to tell me if they considered anything untrue, which I would then review.

Yet in over 3 months, no action has been taken against me and nobody has suggested that anything I published is untrue. I think that you can take it as a given that the criminals in your ranks are not going to make a claim against me because of the high risk of again committing perjury and/or perverting the course of justice. You might care to verify for yourself why no claim has been made against me.

Please advise whether you are content with this state of affairs or whether you are going to do anything about your criminals.
