For the attention of superintendent Alison Ross

In the Warrington Guardian online, you are quoted as saying:

"We are a public service and it is essential that the communities we serve have both confidence and trust in the service we deliver.

"We actively promote the highest of standards of personal and professional behaviour and integrity to all officers and staff....."

Does that mean that in fact you are willing to investigate the crimes of PCs Eoin Anderson and Nicola Rimmer? Or are you just saying it and not meaning it?

PC Regan's behaviour was certainly unethical, but I am not sure that she is a criminal to the same degree as Anderson and Rimmer who have so far had the protection of your department and the chief constable.
